American Shipments
The Local Market
Chinese Wheat

NEW Business in American wheat booked by Shanghai mills has fallen off considerably, and for the past two weeks nothing has been consummated in this direction. Since June purchases of American wheat have been very heavy, some 160,000 short tons being contracted by the mills here for shipment September, October, November and December. A portion of this cargo has already begun to be delivered here but the bulk of it has not yet been shipped. Very heavy shipments are expected in October and November.

Almost all this contracted cargo was bought at rates ranging between G.41.50 and G.44 per ton c. and f. Shanghai. The flour mills in Shanghai today are not willing to pay anything more than G.39.50 per ton c. and f. Shanghai, although the quotation in American stands at G.42.50 per ton c. and f. Shanghai.

An interesting feature of the developments in the local wheat market is the transaction of 20,000 short tons of Canadian wheat bought by the flour mills here at G.42.50 for November-December shipment. This is the first business in Canadian wheat this season. Indeed the importation of Canadian wheat is negligible into Shanghai.

Chinese wheat is quoted today at Ts. 3.30 per picul, and Canadian wheat at G.42.50 per ton works out at the present exchange to Ts. 4.01 per picul, a difference of about two mace per picul. Chinese wheat is weaker, the result principally of the flour mills deciding not to buy at present in the hope that prices will come down. Nanking wheat is quoted at Ts. 3.75 per picul and Hankow at Ts. 3.65 per picul, against Ts. 3.55 and Ts. 3.85 of last week. The arrivals from the producing districts average about 29,000 to 30,000 piculs daily.

CROP NOT GOOD
The Shanghai flour mills are turning out some 50,000 sacks of flour daily, and for this production the mills require some 31,000 piculs of wheat daily. It would seem that the supplies of indigenous wheat are for the present sufficient for the mills' needs, and when all the quantity contracted previously arrives, there should be a nice reserve for these organizations to work upon should supplies of Chinese wheat fall far short of expectation.

It is the opinion of those in the trade that the crop has not been a good one this year in China. There is not likely to be any attempt to corner or hold up supplies on the part of the Chinese holders in view of the heavy shipments of American wheat coming forth in future months. Stocks of American wheat in Shanghai now are extremely small, but the belief is that with any declining tendency in the market the Shanghai mills will make large purchases. The wave of buying which ceased at the first half of September might break out once again with full force. The millowners here recognize the necessity of ensuring a regular supply of the product to enable them to work their machinery for the most part of the season. Last year the opportunity to do so was not presented owing to the high prices ruling both in Shanghai and American markets. Nevertheless, heavy purchases were made, although a good many mills were compelled to close down.

FLOUR SHIPMENTS
It is reported that some 5,000 tons of Canadian high patent flour per month from September to January have been booked for shipment from Vancouver to the Orient. Last season was the first time that the Orient purchased Canadian high patent flour as an experiment, which had satisfactory results. Canadian millers are making every effort to

BANDITS AGAIN TAKE FOREIGN CAPTIVES IN HONAN AREA

American Priest And Mission Workers Seized

ONE IS RELEASED

Father McDermott, Fired On And Robbed, Is Freed

The firing upon and robbery of an American Catholic priest, Father Timothy McDermott, in Hunan, and the reported capture of Mr. and Mrs. C. Howard Bird, of the China Inland Mission in Honan, make up the latest news of bandit activities received from ap-river.

No detailed word has yet been received of the fate of Miss Mary Darroch and Miss M. R. Sharp, taken prisoner by bandits who sacked Sihwahsen more than a week ago.

Reports reaching Hankow regarding Father McDermott's experience state that he was on his way from Kienyang to Shenchow-fu in a small boat when, at Tungwan, about a mile below Chenki, Hunan, his craft was fired on by a band of robbers on the river. Father McDermott himself bent to the oars with his crew in an endeavor to escape, according to an independent news service dispatch, but a heavy head wind retarded progress to such an extent that they drifted within range of the rifles. The boat was allowed to swing inshore and it was still about ten yards from the bank when the bandits surged out and dragged Father McDermott out. They took away his shoes and looted the boat, after which they led him some distance into the hills and then searched him for further valuables, stripped him of most of his clothing and even took his glasses—the latter loss causing him much inconvenience then and later.

IS MARCHED AWAY
Father McDermott was marched with the robbers for a considerable distance from the river, his life being threatened repeatedly, but he was finally released. The only thing he recovered was a check for $50 which the robbers threw away as valueless. At the time of the attack he was carrying a passport warranting his safe conduct through Hunan. This document was seized by the brigands.

The boat in which the priest was taken was found by the robbers. It is the opinion of those in the trade that the crop has not been a good one this year in China. There is not likely to be any attempt to corner or hold up supplies on the part of the Chinese holders in view of the heavy shipments of American wheat coming forth in future months. Stocks of American wheat in Shanghai now are extremely small, but the belief is that with any declining tendency in the market the Shanghai mills will make large purchases. DROWNED SAILOR IDENTIFIED AS C.B.M. ROY CARL

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict Of Accidental Death

Chief Bo'sun's Mate Roy S. Carl of the United States Navy destroyer John D. Edwards met his death by accidental drowning, of which the circumstances are unknown according to the verdict of a coroner's jury before Coroner Nelson E. Lurton yesterday morning.

The body of Carl was found floating in the river on Sunday afternoon and removed to the mortuary pending identification.

Yesterday afternoon other seamen from his ship identified the body and the adjourned inquest Ensign C. M. Alvord testified that Carl had been in the Navy about 15 years. He had always been of good character but had a habit of going about a great deal alone, he said.

Carl was last seen when he left the ship on the evening before his body was found. At that time he was known to have about $400 on his person and was carrying two or three packages. $224 was taken from the pockets of the dead man when his body was recovered.

Ensign Alvord suggested that it was possible Carl had met his death through foul play as he said he had noticed a slight bruise above the eye. Dr. A. H. Swan, testifying at the previous session, however, said that Carl had probably met his death accidentally and that there were no signs of foul play.

Mrs. Prince secured a divorce, in Paris, from Frederick Prince, noted Boston society man and war hero.

Yes, We Have No Cafes, But Tea-Shops, Have Got

BY IRENE CORREALLY KERN

Now that Shanghai's night life is a thing of the past and the iron lid has been screwed down firmly on the city's ebullient gaiety, the morning morning, loud cries of "It's it" and "Has it?" arise.

For the present, Little Russia is in mourning and the erstwhile Merry Bachelors, Inc. and Midnight Sons, Ltd. have combined and changed their respective names to The Gentlemen's Endeavor Club, Ltd.

The w.k. and highly respected "heaven Chinese" is still very much in our midst. So are his tea houses, chow stands, funeral and wedding bands, to say nothing of the main-jong-geries and sing song shops, wherefore—

If the reform wave is going to be permanent and not come all out of curl like a marcel on a damp day, your correspondent rises from her chair, makes a bow and throws a suggestion into the ring.

Why lock the front door and leave the back of the house open? Why not make the whole town so pure and so much like the states that even New Yorkers visiting here will feel at home?

UNFAIR, SEIZ WE
If the cafes in town and in the "country" must put their ballets and bars to bed at 1 a.m. it seems like unfair discrimination, to allow the second-story tea houses and the ground floor chow stands on Rue de Consul to continue at full blast until the alarm clock brings riches by on its way to work.

Everybody who has ever tried to squeeze a brushful of toothpaste out of a tube of the frozen same knows what happens. If you push hard enough it will come out somewhere; if not at the regulation top it will burst the sides so that you achieve practically the same result only less neatly.

Squeezed out of the up-to-now popular places of amusement by the strong hand of the 1 o'clock curfew, it looks as if the 3 and 4 o'clockers would just naturally burst out in several directions, to wit, the sometime afore-mentioned Chinese substitutes which, rumor has it, will try to ersatz the grief away.

There is one thing to be said about the chow stands and tea houses. Their number is legion and if you have one of those "let's go somewhere else" ones on any night, you can spend a week or more in humming yourself.

DANCING DIFFICULT
Of course dancing on the smart and knobby boards of these transformed palaces of pleasure will not be so easy on the callouses as the beautiful parquet floors of our best-known cafes. A Chinese hand (every other note absolutely guaranteed to be sour) will not all the night with the same kind of music that the higher priced jazz outfits of downtown, Bubbling Well and the near-suburbs do. Nor will the sing song girls, warbling in opposition to these stoppages of curdled syncope perform ear and eye-billing roles as successfully as the little girls with the accent.

Nor will the all-night coolie stands serve the same kind of ham and eggs as the popularly lamented dawn-breakfast cafe. Still, until the boys and girls who have no place to go but out get used to answering "home" whenever somebody starts singing "where do we go from here" they'll do. Egg on the chin is worth two on the plate (when the door's locked) no matter where you get 'em.

Early reports from the Chinese quarters are to the effect that large supplies of tea are being laid in so that the rush of patrons may be accommodated. The music of the once well-known but never-popular "please buy yun small bottle wine" will be the same but the words will be different, to wit, "please buy yun small cup tea."

"ONE O'CLOCK NOW"
It is even rumored in some circles that the New World and the Great World will become Danceries De Luxe, the price per dance, partner furnished, to be a string of cash or what have you.

A rumor from another quarter has it that the title of that lazy, lovely waltz "Three O'Clock In The Morning" has been changed to conform with the new law. In its new dress "One O'Clock In The Morning" threatens to supplant "Home Sweet Home" and to become the international anthem of the expelled pleasure-seekers.

It will be a weak life but a great one.

REICHSWEHR PUTS DOWN NEW REVOLT IN GERMANY

Insurgents Repulsed In Attempt To Disarm Troops

CENSORSHIP ON

Think Situation More Serious Than Is Admitted

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 1.—A revolutionary movement, originated by Nationalist organizations, has broken out at Kuestrin, 50 miles from Berlin. Insurgents attempted to disarm the garrison and occupy the fortress but were repulsed. The Nationalist leaders have been arrested by the Reichswehr, whose commander summoned reinforcements from neighboring towns. The troops have been ordered to suppress the revolt ruthlessly.

The Minister of Defence has imposed a censorship on military news.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 1.—According to a despatch from Duesseeldorf, "the revolting savagery" is the term applied by a French communiqué to the conduct of the German police in pursuing and shooting the separatist demonstrators after unprovokedly firing on the demonstrators, though the occupation authorities had ordered them to remain in their barracks. The communiqué says that 50 persons were wounded, of whom 23 are in a serious condition in hospital.

French troops restored order at Duesseeldorf in the evening and after that hour when they were busy arresting the police and also high officials alleged to be involved in the disorder.

The communiqué declares that 4,000 Communists, drawn up half a mile from the demonstration, did not intervene.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 1.—A semi-official statement declares that the police did not intervene at Duesseeldorf until several of their officers were maltreated. One was shot by the separatists. The latter summoned the French military, who disarmed them.

RUSSIAN WOMAN SUES GARAGE FOR T.S. 7,500

Alleges Serious Injuries Caused By Central Motor Car

Alleging that she had sustained serious injuries as a result of having been thrown from her ricksha by a motor car, a Russian woman, Mrs. M. S. Bialokoz, 39 Dixwell Road, yesterday brought suit against the Central Garage in the British Supreme Court before Sir Skinner Turner claiming T.S. 7,500 damages. She also claims T.S. 295 and $262 for medical attendance and loss of salary.

Mrs. Bialokoz, through her attorneys, Rodger and Husar, claims that on March 28 she was proceeding along Avenue Joffre in a ricksha when a motor car driven by one of their employees struck the ricksha, throwing her violently to the ground, rendering her unconscious, and causing severe external and internal injuries.

The motor car was in the wrong, she alleges, because the driver did not take into consideration the slippery condition of the road and was driving at an improper speed; he failed to make any signal that he was going to pass the ricksha; ignored her signals that she was crossing to the right hand side of the road, and himself drove over to the right hand side with the resulting collision.

Germany Must Pay Up To Limit Of Capacity, Says Baldwin At Conference

Only Closest Co-operation And Complete Confidence Of Allies Can Bring Settlement In Europe, British Premier Declares

(Reuter's Service)
London, Oct. 1.—Mr. Baldwin in his opening speech very heartily welcomed the delegates. He pointed out that except for General Smuts, Mr. Massey and Marquess Curzon, who had taken an important part in the conference since 1917, the delegates, except Mr. Burton, were attending the Imperial Conference for the first time.

He cordially welcomed Mr. Cosgrave and his colleagues, and also Mr. Mackenzie King, on whom, he said, they would rely to continue the high traditions of his predecessors. They would be especially glad to benefit by his knowledge of industrial problems.

Mr. Warren was no stranger to England nor was Senator de Wet, whom Mr. Baldwin cordially greeted. The Imperial Prime Minister remarked that Mr. Bruce (Australia) was unable to be present at the opening deliberations, but they would welcome him in a few days.

It was a great pleasure to have with them the distinguished representatives of the Indian Empire. The Maharajah of Alwar was widely known as an enlightened ruler, deeply interested in the educational and material progress of his state, which had rendered valuable help in men and money during the war. Dr. Sapru had long been a conspicuous figure in Indian public life. He was a brilliant lawyer and a wise statesman.

REPARATIONS PROBLEM
Reviewing the history of the reparations problem since May, 1921, Mr. Baldwin emphasized that there was no difference in opinion among the Allies on the principle that Germany should be made to pay to the utmost of her ability. The Imperial Government had had no easy task in carrying out a policy neither helping, nor hindering the action of the Allies, but they dared to hope that they had succeeded in the main in maintaining strict neutrality.

The notes exchanged between Britain and France since the January conference and more divergent of opinion with regard to the best method of obtaining reparation and advancing the cause of permanent peace in Europe. The divergence reflected differences in the temperament and outlook of the two nations, which it would be foolish to ignore, but the last twenty years had shown that they were not incompatible with whole-hearted co-operation in the face of grave danger.

A NEW PHASE
The government had strained every nerve to preserve the solidarity of the allies, especially the Entente, believing that any Anglo-French rupture might postpone the peace of Europe. The Government's patience in trying to preserve good relations with

DICTATORSHIP IN KLAN FIGHT IN OKLAHOMA

Governor Prevents Election And Threatens To Use Troops

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 2.—Governor Walton today substituted a military dictatorship throughout the state for the martial law which he has enforced for some days past in an effort to break up the hold which the Ku Klux Klan in the state has on members of the legislature and other public officials.

The first move made by the new regime was to prevent the referendum election set for today at which the people were to vote on a measure which would have empowered the legislature to meet and impeach the governor.

The governor, acting in his new capacity as military dictator, ordered the arrest of anyone who attempted to open the polls for the election. He declared that he is willing to arm 100,000 men and give them orders to shoot to kill providing such a move is found necessary to defeat the Klan and drive it out of the state.

CONFERENCE OF BRITISH DOMINION IS CONVENED

Prime Ministers Of Empire Meet In London

BALDWIN SPEAKS

Vote Of Sympathy To Japanese Is Adopted

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 1.—The Imperial Conference of Prime Ministers opened this morning.

The sky was grey with drizzling rain but the crowd in Downing Street was large enough to necessitate the attention of the police. Hundreds of photographers made wild rushes to the door of No. 10 as the delegates arrived.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin and the Duke of Devonshire were early on the scene. Mr. Massey (New Zealand) was the first Dominion representative to appear. Then came Marquess Curzon, Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame (President of the Board of Trade), Viscount Peel (Secretary of State for India), Mr. Tej Bahadur Sapru (Law Member of the Executive Council of the Governor-General of India), the Maharajah of Alwar—the latter and his secretaries were attired in gorgeous Oriental robes. Mr. D. M. Dalal (High Commissioner for India in England), Mr. Mackenzie King (Canada), Mr. W. R. Warren (Minister of Justice and Attorney-General of Newfoundland), General Smuts (South Africa) and his Ministers, Mr. Burton and Senator de Wet, and, lastly, the Free State delegates, Mr. Cosgrave and Mr. Fitzgerald.

The conference arrived in motor-cars, carrying the flags of the various Dominions. It is noteworthy that the sole exception to the conventional top-hat and morning coat was General Smuts, who wore a grey tunic and blue serge suit.

Mr. Baldwin welcomed the representatives individually in the Cabinet room.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 1.—An official communiqué issued after this morning's conference states that Mr. Baldwin gave a general review of the Imperial and international situation, to which Mr. Mackenzie King, Mr. Massey, General Smuts, Mr. Warren, Mr. Cosgrave and the Maharajah of Alwar briefly replied.

The speeches will be published fully this evening.

Mr. Mackenzie moved and Mr. Massey seconded an address of respect to the King, expressing the hope that Their Majesties would long be spared to strengthen the ties of love and devotion uniting the peoples of the British Commonwealth. This was unanimously adopted, as also was a resolution of sympathy with Britain's old and faithful ally, Japan, and confident expectation that Japan would rapidly recover and pursue the great part she was destined to fill in the world.

Reuter's Agency understands that the Dominion representatives were very much impressed by Mr. Baldwin's lucidity and comprehensiveness, and deferred their detailed replies till the explanation of the British case is completed by Marquess Curzon and the Duke of Devonshire (Secretary of State for the Colonies) on Wednesday.

The following is the resolution passed by the Imperial Conference expressing the British Empire's sympathy with Japan, in which will be communicated to the Japanese Government:

"The Prime Ministers and representatives of Great Britain, the British Dominions and India, assembled at the Imperial Conference desire at the opening session to send their old and faithful ally, Japan, an expression of profound sympathy in the terrible calamity by which she has been assailed, their admiration of her patriotic energy and unconquerable spirit with which the Japanese nation met the blow and their confident expectation that Japan will rapidly recover from the shock that might have overwhelmed any less courageous people and will pursue undiminished the great part she is destined to fill in the social and economic progress of the world."

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 1.—The Conference will resume on Wednesday.

day to the dominions of the British Empire. Mr. Baldwin (Kenya) has been appointed secretary of the Advisory Committee for the Dominion Conference which meets tomorrow.

The Dominion delegates generally deplore the idea that the Imperial Conference will yield to the demands of the dominions. They emphasize that this is an important family council which should be most valuable in framing a common policy, especially on pending international questions. The most definite decisions are likely to emanate from the Economic Conference, which will deal, inter alia, with important questions of detail arising from the general Imperial policy.

Foreign Captives Seized By Bandits

Father McDermott is one of the youngest members of the Passionist Father Mission, being only twenty-seven years of age. His home is in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and he has been stationed in the West Hunan district for the past two years.

REPORT BIRDS TAKEN

The capture of Mr. and Mrs. Bird was reported from Tai Kang, Honan. The report stated that the town of Fukuy and been raided and that Mr. and Mrs. Bird, together with a number of Chinese, had been carried away.

A telegram received at Kaitung from an official at Tai Kang denied the report of the capture, but foreigners at Kaitung believe it is merely a ruse intended to prevent any military attempt at a release. The design of the bandits is much increased since this latest outrage, following hard upon the heels of Chinese bandit attacks in the neighborhood.

At Peking where Mr. and Mrs. Bird were located, Mr. and Mrs. Bird were taken on September 13, when a band of mounted armed bandits swooped down upon the town. The place is just east of Yencheng, on the railway. The China Inland Mission at Shihwahien was notified and it is believed that many Chinese were taken away to be held for ransom.

The British Consul at Hankow was notified of the abduction of the two women and he has immediately word back to the mission station at Yencheng that he would do all in his power to effect a release.

THINK BAND SAME
According to information received at Yencheng, the outlaw band, several hundred strong, came from Shantung. This information also carried the word that the towns of Tai Kang and Peking, between Shihwahien and the railway, would probably be attacked and so it is believed that the same gang carried off Mr. and Mrs. Bird.

Following the report of the capture of Miss Darroch and Miss Sharp, Mr. P. S. Joyce, superintendent of the China Inland Mission at Kaitung, started for the scene of the attack to obtain details and to what is possible to effect the release of the prisoners. No word has come back since but it is believed that further information regarding the situation will be forthcoming within the next day or so.

France laid them open to charges of indecision and weakness, but at least it testified to their wish to act, in the words of Disraeli, as "a moderating and mediatorial power" in the councils of Europe and their ardent desire to preserve friendship with France.

It seemed that at present we were entering a new phase with the collapse of German passive resistance, which had appeared imminent when Mr. Baldwin met M. Poincare in Paris. He would not venture to predict how the new situation would develop, but it was clear to them in Paris and it was becoming daily clearer that it was only by the closest co-operation and complete confidence of the allies in each other that a settlement of Europe's difficulties could be hoped.

Mr. Baldwin added that Marquess Curzon would make a fuller statement on the situation when foreign affairs were discussed later in the week.

ITALO-GREEK CRISIS

Referring to the Italo-Greek crisis, the Prime Minister drew particular attention to the very useful and effective part played by the League of Nations. The members of the Council of the League deserved the greatest credit for placing the permanent interests of peace above what might have seemed the immediate interests of the League. Had the League not existed or had it not acted as it did, a resort to arms would almost inevitably have occurred. The moderation and common-sense shown by the League in very trying circumstances has strengthened its hold upon the confidence of reasoning men everywhere. They had every reason to be satisfied with the part played by the British Empire delegations at Geneva in contributing to this happy result.

Dealing with the Turkish Treaty, Mr. Baldwin expressed the opinion that, after hearing the statement of Marquess Curzon in that connection, the delegates would agree that the treaty not only safeguarded the essential interests of the British Empire without damaging British prestige, but had done something to reconcile the different national religious interests which so often troubled that quarter of the world, and might have laid the foundation of a period of comparative tranquillity and economic reconstruction.

DEBT TO AMERICA

Referring to the debt to America, the Prime Minister emphasized that the burden was very heavy, amounting to seven pence in the pound income-tax. Its repayment would demand all our energies, but the funding had been the only course consistent with the supreme standard of British credit, and was essential to the preliminary restoration of the normal economic life of the world. "The debts of great nations must be recognised if the foundations of commercial progress are to stand."

Referring to Imperial defence, Mr. Baldwin said that the results of the Washington Conference, which exceeded the most sanguine expectations, were in no small measure due to the last Imperial Conference and the successful co-operation of the British Empire delegation. Referring to the decision to reinforce defensive air forces, he reiterated the willingness of the government to co-operate with other governments in limiting air armaments.

INTER-IMPERIAL TRADE

Dealing with the effects of post-war unsettlement, the Prime Minister said that unhappily recent trade developments had been checked. He pointed out that there were still 1,250,000 unemployed compared with a little over 1,500,000 when the last conference met.

Mr. Baldwin declared that the question of inter-imperial trade was one of the most important items on the agenda. He was confident that they would be able to devise mutually advantageous measures—a new way of redistributing population, improving transport and means of communication and generally increasing the growth of trade within the Empire.

The economic condition of Europe made it essential to turn our eyes elsewhere. The resources of the Empire were to the growing international moral sense as revealed in the proceedings of the Assembly of the League of Nations, to the existence of a powerful friend of peace in the United States, and finally to that League of Nations in whose name they were assembled, namely, the British Commonwealth, which was far greater, as General Smuts once said, than any Empire which had ever existed. "A dynamic system, growing and evolving all the time towards new destinies."

ON EQUAL FOOTING

The Empire was the natural and spontaneous product, not only of its own necessities, but of those of mankind. "Before me I see men who together can speak for a world commonwealth, containing one quarter of mankind. Like a network of steel, embedded in concrete, this Commonwealth holds more than itself together. Dislocate these ties, and civilisation itself would collapse. We stand here on an equal footing. No government present can bind the rest. We can act with effect so far as we agree and no further, but we shall achieve agreement and so strengthen the bonds uniting us only so far as each and all are seeking to relieve not only our own difficulties and troubles but those of the distracted world. The British Empire cannot live for itself alone. Its strength as a Commonwealth of Nations will grow so far as they unite to bear the burdens of those weaker and less fortunate than themselves."

Surveying the situation in Europe, Mr. Baldwin said that the size of armies and the money spent on armaments was greater than in 1914. Economic solidarity was rent asunder. Was it not amazing that all efforts should not be directed towards reconstruction? His only consolation was to recall the history of the past, and to reflect on the unity of our own Empire and the deep and universal desire of our people for peace.

WOMAN'S CLUB HAS MEETING IN NEW QUARTERS

Important Session is Held On Body's 'Silver' Anniversary

A significant meeting of the American Woman's Club yesterday afternoon celebrated the first general annual meeting in the new club rooms, 86 Szechuen Road, and the 25th anniversary of the club's organization. Silver coin contributions for the club equipment amounted to about $200.

Dr. Anne Walter Fearn, the president, presided at the meeting and paid a sincere tribute to the excellent work of the House Committee, after which the club manifested its appreciation by a rising vote. Mrs. Gardner Crane, chairman of the committee reported on its work, mentioned gifts of members and departments and reported upon the valuable service the club has rendered on the Foreign Emergency Committee.

The following members of the club who have been long associated in its work spoke of its past history and congratulated it upon its present club rooms: Mrs. Lobingier, Mrs. Loch, Mrs. Lyman, Mrs. Silver, and a letter was read from Mrs. W. H. Lunt. On motion of Mrs. Clapp a rising vote of thanks was given Dr. Fearn for her splendid work for the club.

After reading words of tribute to the late Mrs. Swain, a member who lost her life in the Japan disaster, the club rose in silent tribute to her memory. Resolutions of sympathy were also sent to Mrs. Cabell, another member who lost her husband in the earthquake.

MEETING TODAY

Announcement was made of an important meeting of the Building Fund Committee in the club rooms this morning at 10:30. All members are urged to attend. Mah-jongg and bridge parties will also be given the last part of the month to aid this fund and members are asked to form parties, a table for four costing $6.00, including tea, single tickets at $1.50 may also be obtained. The Literary Department will hold its first meeting for the season on October 12th at 4:30 in Headquarters. Mrs. Beaman will speak on "What the Songs had to Build On."

Moscow, Oct. 1.—Leon Trotsky, leader of the Soviet government, in an interview today with United States Senator William H. King of Utah, declared that Russia will remain neutral in case there is a revolution in Germany.

Sad Story Of B.V.D.'s End In American Court

He opened up the sloop-chest on September 19 on the high seas he discovered that someone had busied it open and decamped with 12 suits of B.V.D.'s, 12 work shirts and 25 cartons of cigarettes. The Captain, upon receiving the report, immediately organized a search party and began looking for the articles valued at $55, wholesale prices. On Hamlin's bunk, they testified, they found two suits of the missing undies, and upon closer examination of his person they discovered one more suit. None of the rest of the stolen property could be found despite diligent search and personal examination. Anyway, they had U. S. Marshal Thurston Porter pinch Hamlin.

BEHIND THE BARS

Hamlin was behind the bars of the American jail only a few hours before his preliminary hearing, but that was long enough to pour out his tale of woe to Mr. F. King, who just happened to be in jail also. King, according to Hamlin, became filled with righteous indignation. He, he declared, was wearing a pair of B.V.D.'s at that very moment that were just like the ones Hamlin was charged with stealing and would gladly come down stairs and show the learned judge that there were thousands of B.V.D.'s that looked, felt and everything just alike.

"You can have King come downstairs and see for yourself," said Hamlin.

The prisoner then denied that he had stolen the underwear. On the contrary, he said, he had purchased them in Portland, Oregon. And furthermore, he asserted, the underwear found in the forenoon hadn't been found in his bunk but on a suitcase at least ten feet away. There were six or seven other sailors in the bunk-room at the time and he could bring them all to court to testify that what he said was the truth.

Commissioner Lorton adjourned the case until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon when Captain Johnson is to produce the underwear Hamlin was wearing—it is now in the safe on board ship—and another suit of underwear from the sloop-chest which is supposed to bear the same serial number. Hamlin also had Mr. Lorton call on a sailor named O'Sullivan, a mess-boy, and some other sailors whose names he didn't remember, to come to court and tell all they know about the B.V.D.'s.

Berlin, Oct. 1.—A communique issued with regard to the revolt at Kuestrin by the Reichswehr Ministry says that through the energetic action of the Reichswehr its commandant speedily became master of the situation. Reinforcements will not now be required.

Owing to the rigorous censorship, little is known with regard to what is happening but the Nationalist insurgents probably supported the Communists. There are indications that the situation is graver than the communique admits. There are no details with regard to casualties, but it is stated that no bloodshed occurred.

Paris, Oct. 1.—Intervention, which resulted in bloodshed, by Schutzpolizei in the course of a peaceful demonstration by the Rhineland Separatists at Duesseldorf on Sunday caused the death of 17 persons, of whom twelve were civilians. Ninety-one persons were wounded, including 70 civilians. A Daily Mail correspondent gives his opinion of the attitude of the German Police as follows: "By savagely repressing the mass demonstration at Duesseldorf, held to advocate a separate Rhineland Republic, the German Green Police, which was manifestly acting on orders from Berlin, made for the propagation of the Separatist movement rather than anything else. The occupation authorities confined themselves to taking the necessary measures for the restoration of order. They forbade demonstrations at Duesseldorf and opened an inquiry."

CLOTHING NEEDED FOR REFUGEES BEING SENT HOME

Fifty Destitute Russians Soon To Leave Here

Arrangements are now nearing completion whereby fifty destitute Russians who have asked to be repatriated will leave Shanghai for their home-land, via Manchuria, at an early date.

But a difficulty has arisen in the matter of clothing for these men and women, the little they possess being altogether inadequate for the long journey across Siberia. An urgent appeal, therefore, is made for overcoats, suits, dresses, underclothing, stockings, socks, boots and other articles of wear to supply their need.

At this time of year, when wardrobes are being overhauled and replenished in anticipation of the cold weather, many garments come to light that could be spared. All such will be very gratefully received and distributed to these homeless refugees if generous donors will kindly address their parcels to The Refugee Relief Advisory Committee, 5a North Soochow Road.

Chinese Students Given Reception On Arrival In Seattle

Word comes from Seattle that the party of nearly 200 Chinese students who reached there early in September en route to study in various educational institutions in the United States were given a very warm reception by the Chinese Club of Seattle, the Y.M.C.A. and other organizations. They were met at the dock with automobile and taken to the Central Y.M.C.A. where they were entertained for the two-day period they spent in Seattle. They arrived on Saturday night and on Sunday evening they were entertained at the First Presbyterian Church at a supper and reception of the young people's organizations of the churches. On Monday the Chinese Club of Seattle took them over the city on an automobile tour and in the evening they were regaled a banquet. On Tuesday the party left on special trains for Chicago and other points in the East.

popularize this here and are hopeful of better results.

In the midst of all the clamor regarding what is or is not to be done with America's wheat surplus, it must be remarked that on the statistics published it would seem that the people of the United States are actually increasing their consumption of wheat products at a very commendable rate. They are doing this not because they are being incited to eat more wheat but because a definite reaction has set in from the days of enforced economy in wheat products, the value of bread as the best and cheapest food is being more and more clearly recognized by the American classes.

It will interest Shanghai flour mills that the wheat growers of the Pacific Northwest, according to private advices received here, are advocating the establishment of a federal agency to purchase wheat whenever the price drops below the basis of $1.75 per bushel for dark northern spring wheats and qualities. The wheat grower in America appears to be making the most noise because he represents the best organized part of the farming community of the United States.

Sailor Did Not Disturb Peace

Leslie Harris, a sailor on board the U. S. S. Huron, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, was found not guilty of disturbing the peace when he appeared before U. S. Commissioner Nelson E. Lurton yesterday morning. Harris was arrested by the French Annamite police on the French Bund on Saturday night just before midnight.

He testified that he had had dinner at the Broadway Butchery and had left there at 11:20 p.m. as he had to stand the 12 to 4 watch on the Huron. Going along the Bund he said he met several sailors who told him not to go any further because there was 'trouble'. He had to get to his ship, however, he said, and continued on. Then an Annamite policeman approached him and unslung his carbine at him. He grabbed the gun, he said, whereupon he was arrested and detained all night and until noon the next day in the French jail without being allowed to communicate with his ship or the American Consulate. The police witnesses merely testified that he had resisted when they attempted to arrest him. None gave testimony that he had been in any trouble.

Shanghai To Have Big New Athletic Field; Will Be Ready By Next Summer

Large Tract In Frenchtown Now Being Levelled
And Graded; Foreign-Chinese Organisation
Being Formed To Develop Enterprise

Shanghai is going to have a large new athletic field, and what is equally important, an active foreign and Chinese association to control and control its activities. The new field, which is privately owned, will be built on the large tract of land bounded by Rue Admiral Bayle and Rue Obervatoire, in Frenchtown, an easily accessible location. The tract comprises some twenty acres and will be ready for use as soon as grading and leveling operations, already started, can be completed, which will be by next summer.

The new field will be used principally for the development of baseball, soccer and other sports among the Chinese, although foreigners will have the use of the grounds for important games. Part of the field is to be fenced off, so that admission can be charged to certain baseball, soccer and other games. Any funds thus raised, however, will be utilized by the Association to pay expenses of bringing outside teams here, and to further the work of the field.

All athletic teams will be allowed to use the field free of charge, and the organization now being perfected, and which will be composed of both Chinese and Foreigners, will devote itself mainly to the development of athletics among the Chinese. Athletic instructors are to be employed to provide free instruction in the various games. Harry Kingman, captain of the Shanghai baseball team, probably will be chosen as head instructor in baseball.

Manager Herby Gallop and Freddy Bills, of the Shanghai Baseball club, are among the prime movers in the new enterprise and they will be members of the organization that is now being formed to handle the new field.

The real object of the enterprise will be to promote baseball among the Chinese. To this end it is the aim of those who have the work in charge to distribute large numbers of baseballs and baseball equipment free among the Chinese. The field is large enough for four or five baseball diamonds, in addition to tennis courts, soccer fields, a cinder track, outdoor basketball courts, and so on.

The present baseball club will benefit, as the new field will give the club an opportunity to stage games in the spring before the present recreation field is open to the baseballers, and in the fall, after it is closed on account of the training season.

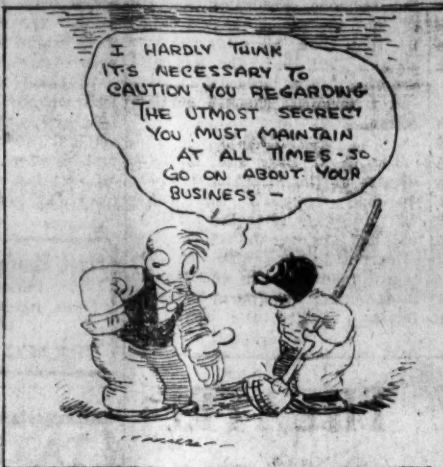

The new field is in no way connected with the Shanghai Amateur Baseball club, which will continue as a separate organization. Some of the members of the baseball club, however, are allied with those back of the new project. The names of those in the new organization will be published as soon as the roster is completed, which will be in the near future.

Manager Gallop of the Baseball team is enthusiastic over the new enterprise, as he believes it will be the means of giving baseball a tremendous impetus in Shanghai, particularly among the Chinese. He thinks that with proper encouragement baseball can be made as popular among the Chinese here as it is in Hawaii and in the Pacific coast cities of America.

Further announcements concerning this new enterprise will be made in the near future.

Decrease Is Seen In Swedish Prices

(Reuters' Service)
Stockholm, August 24.—The Swedish wholesale prices, which since the month of April have shown a slowly receding tendency, have during July declined further, as indicated by the official index prepared by the Board of Trade. The index figure for all articles is two points lower or 162, based on the average prices for 1913 (100). Lower prices of both raw materials and manufactured goods have contributed to this end. The lowering during July has been due to an even distribution of commodities. The strongest decline has been for lime, cement, brick, glassware, and chemical goods. The only group which has advanced is woodgoods whose index figure ever since November last year has advanced steadily, the last month by not less than four points.

The contest took place at Olympia. There were 16,000 spectators.

Both the boxers received tremendous ovations on entering the ring. Beckett came in in his usual crouching attitude. Carpentier immediately led with a left to his opponent's face, and then flashed his right to the jaw, flooring Beckett for a count of six after the fight had lasted four seconds. Beckett rose dazed, and Carpentier instantly sent another lightning right to the chin. Beckett fell and was counted out, but the towel was thrown in before the count ended. The fight lasted 15 seconds.

BAD ICE CREAM BRINGS FINE AND LOSS OF LICENSE

For selling ice cream found on analysis to be unfit for human consumption, Leon Winkoff, Russian shopkeeper at 7 Broadway, was fined $25 in the Mixed Court yesterday and the Court recommended that his license be cancelled.

Sanitary Inspector Vett prosecuted the case and stated to the Court that he had taken samples of the ice cream on five different occasions, on each occasion finding the product unfit. Dr. Hill, he said, had previously intended having the man's license revoked, but the accused had pleaded to be allowed to continue his business and promised to pay particular attention to the manufacture of his ice cream.

The accused pleaded in his defense that he had asked the Health Department to send a representative to show him how to make the cream satisfactorily.

Russian Woman Sues Garage For £15, 7,500

had improperly directed her coolie to cross from the left hand to the right hand side of the road in front of the motor car and that she had given no signal which would have warned the chauffeur of her intentions.

The husband of the woman was the first witness called and gave evidence along the lines of the plaintiff's allegations. He was riding in another ricksha behind his wife at the time, he said, and his ricksha narrowly escaped being overturned also. The motor car horn had not sounded, he said, and despite the fact that it had been raining and the road was slippery the car was going at what he considered an improper speed.

He testified that three doctors had attended his wife and although the accident occurred three months or more ago still complained of headaches, lightheadedness and suffered other ill effects.

His wife, he said, was a seamstress earning $55 a month, and he taught English and Russian receiving $23 a month and his son from the Cadet School. Mrs. Balokoz sued as a pauper.

LEGAL TILT

The husband then said that action had been brought against the chauffeur in the French Mixed Court, but Mr. Macleod objected to the introduction of evidence from another court. Mr. Husar admitted that if the French court had found the chauffeur guilty of negligence it would be evidence, but Mr. Macleod contended that any decision would have no effect in the British court. Mr. Husar said he did not argue that the French Mixed Court judgment was conclusive but he did contend that it was prima facie evidence of the conclusiveness of the negligence of the defendants. The point was taken under consideration by the Chief Judge.

Cross-examined by Mr. Macleod the husband denied that the hood of the rickshas were up and also denied Mr. Macleod's statement that his wife had not been unconscious at all. She had been unconscious an hour and a half, he said.

DOCTORS TESTIFY

Dr. Kusnetzoff, a Russian doctor, was next called, and testified that he had examined the woman at his office on the second day after the accident. At that time, he said, he had found no internal injuries, but had found many cuts, bruises, and swellings all down the left side of her body. He thought the nervous system might have been affected and he called Dr. Bary into consultation. Later he discovered that she had suffered serious internal injuries.

The next witness was Dr. Labine, a French doctor attached to the French Municipal Council, endorsed Dr. Kusnetzoff's testimony and added that she had consulted him previous to the accident concerning whether or not she would have a child. At that time, he said, she was alright, but that she was now suffering from internal injuries and a seriously shocked nervous system.

AFTERNOON

Dr. A. C. Bary was the first witness at the afternoon session. He had examined the plaintiff three days after the accident and had discovered that she had numerous injuries which he described in detail. In addition, he said, her nervous system had been seriously affected, and that she suffered a great deal from forgetfulness now.

Mr. Macleod objected to Dr. Bary's evidence on some points and the doctor was only allowed to testify that she had complained of forgetfulness. She was now suffering from chromatic neuritis.

In answer to Mr. Husar, Dr. Bary said the disease was progressive and she was likely to suffer from it for some time to come. The woman's capacity for work would be reduced 60 or 70 percent for several years, he said. In cross-examination Mr. Macleod and Dr. Bary engaged in a lengthy argument concerning the original cause of loss of memory and its effect. Dr. Bary contended that loss of memory could be caused by blows not on the head and said that he had taken a gloomy view of her case because of his experience in similar cases. Michael Nikifor, 478 Avenue Joffre, testified that Mrs. Balokoz had been unconscious for about an hour and a half. During that time, he said, her arms were hanging down, her eyes were closed, and she never spoke.

NEW NAVY 'Y' IS MECCA FOR SAILORS IN PORT

Extensive Program Of Events Arranged For Navy Men This Week

The Navy Y. M. C. A. has entertained thousands of sailors since the arrival of the ships of the U. S. Asiatic Fleet, the attendance at the building averaging about a thousand a day. Several hundred sailors sleep at the Navy "Y" nightly. At one o'clock in the afternoon when the sailors on shore leave arrive at the Navy "Y" they beseege the clerks in their demand for rooms for the night.

Every day many sailors are sent in charge of officers, to the swimming tank to try out their ability to swim and those who cannot are put in charge of the physical director, Mr. Hazard, to be taught to swim.

Sunday was an especially active day at the Navy "Y." At the Community Church service held in the gymnasium there were many sailors in attendance and at seven there was a Su-ki-yaki feed for 150 sailors, 20 American ladies preparing and serving the food. Following this was a song service at which Chaplain T. P. Riddle of the Huron delivered a forceful sermon.

The Navy "Y" is headquarters for the fleet patrol. It is very interesting to see the men of the day's patrol lined up in the lobby to receive their instructions from the officer in charge before they are sent out to their stations on the streets. It is a cosmopolitan club, for here are seen English and French sailors mingling with the Americans. The sailor's wants are pretty well filled here. He has his place for reading, writing and visiting; recreation in billiards and other games; barber shop, free checking counter, swimming pool, shower baths and food and lodging.

The program of entertainment for this week is: Tuesday night—Edith Clayton in the film "The Homebreaker"; Wednesday night—candy pull and singing; Thursday—movie, "Crooked Straight"; with Charles Ray; Friday night—a dance for the whole fleet with music by the Huron Band, and on Saturday night a movie, Dustin Farnam in "North of '53'".

U. S. warships have been arriving daily. Those now in port are the U. S. ships: Huron, Black Hawk, Preble, Noa, Pruitt, Stewart, William B. Preston, Tracy, Smith Thompson, Barker, John D. Edwards, Whipple, Rizal, Isabel, Monocacy, Quilros and the transport Pecos. In all seventeen ships, with a personnel of 3,000 officers and men.

The 43rd Destroyer Division, now at Hankow, will arrive in Shanghai on the 5th.

Hongkong Shares

Messrs. Moxon Taylor of Hongkong write as follows in their weekly report on the share market dated Hongkong, September 21.

Our market during the week under review was steady, but the volume of business was rather restricted owing no doubt to settlement influences.

The Shanghai market remains steady.

The following are the principal alterations since last week:

Hongkong Banks:—Have eased off a bit, shares having changed hands at $1,055 and $1,060 and close with sellers at $1,070.

Unions:—Have also eased off a little, sales having been effected at $225 and close with buyers at the same price with no shares offering.

Cantons:—Remain firm at $830.

Hongkong Fires:—Are in great demand, shares having changed hands at $480 and more would be paid for any shares offering.

Hongkong Lands:—Owing to a few settlement shares thrown on the market, have eased off a little, and close with buyers at $83 after coming to business at $84 for settlement.

Hongkong Hotels:—Have buyers at $28.10 for Old and $25.95 for New shares.

Cements:—Also owing to settlement influences, had a decline, shares having changed hands at $26.60 ex div. and close with buyers at $26 1/2.

Kowloon Wharves:—Have come to business at $155 for Settlement and more shares are wanted at this price.

Hongkong Docks:—Changed hands at $152 1/2 to $153 for cash.

China Providents:—Have sellers at $24 but shares are wanted at $23 1/2 with no sellers at this price.

China Sugars:—Remain quiet at $219 1/2.

Hongkong Ropes:—Have buyers at $39 1/2 cash, shares being offered at $40 for settlement.

China Lights:—Remain unchanged.

Watsons:—Have firm buyers at $21 1/2 but with no shares offering.

Lane Crawfords:—Remain firm at quotations with no sellers.

Bringing Up Father

(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

By George McManus

And yet he lives in deathless fame
Upon the gospel page.
The people round the Master pressed,
The sick, the poor, the sad—
He stands distinct from all the rest.
A little fisher lad.
We cannot guess what prompts his thought.
That those five loaves he brings:
Two fish he may himself have caught
He carries on his strings.
He waits with patient, open head,
The hungry crowd he sees.
The fish are here, the bread
is here,
And yet what use are these?
O glad child heart, so sure and swift
Thy perfect way to choose
O happy hands that bore the
The Master deigned to use.
We lose the lad amid the throng,
No more of him we know.
Nor if his life were short or long,
Nor what his joy or woe.
Only in one recorded place
The veil is backward cast.
To let that innocent boyish face
Smile on us from the past.
Thus to an age of noisy claims
One lesson more is given
The fair deeds live, the actions names
Are only known in Heaven.

The Brain And The Soul

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

A certain philosopher who puts forth his ideas, he says, only to set people thinking, discouraged to me last night, without regard to the fact that I was trying to go to sleep, somewhat in this fashion:

"There is a phenomenon known to astronomers which may afford some light on the great problem of the origin and immortality of the soul. You know how the condition of a planet is related to its size and mass. Below a certain minimum of mass no celestial body can possess an atmosphere. It must have gravitative power sufficient to retain an envelope of gases which have a lively habit of getting away if not held tight.

"Now, the possession of an atmosphere makes an immeasurable difference to a planet. With it the planet is a living paradise; without it an inert lump. Yet an atmosphere is a gift not bestowed upon every globe that circles in a planetary system. It may be bestowed in full, as with the earth; or in part, as with Mars, and possibly in a very slight degree with Mercury; or not at all, as with the moon and other satellites, and with the asteroidal planets.

"Here we come to the point, which is to liken the mind, soul, or intelligence, of man—for I take these terms as all expressing the same fundamental thing—to the atmosphere of a heavenly body. Animals possess in different degrees, or else in no perceptible degree, some quality analogous to gravitative mass in astronomy. Probably it inheres in the nervous system and has its center of energy in the brain.

"This brain-mass, when existing in any creature in sufficient quantity and in proper proportions and organization, attracts and holds a soul atmosphere, i. e., mind or conscious intelligence, whose presence wholly transforms the creature to which it belongs, just as the air causes the earth to be a world radiant with life in millions of splendid forms, and enlivened with all the fascinating products of continual evolution and progress, while its near neighbor, and indeed its child, the moon, only for lack of power to hold an atmosphere, presents the chalky face of a death's mask.

"Let me lead you back for a moment to the planetary atmosphere. A planet whose mass is inferior to the optimal quantity may enjoy a partial or imperfect degree of the advantage attending the possession of an atmosphere. For instance, there is Mars, whose mass is sufficient to retain, in a rarefied state, some but not all, of the gaseous elements that constitute our air. Accordingly, I put Mars down as representing the condition of one of the inferior animals, which though far below man, nevertheless does possess some intelligence, mind or soul. Perhaps this precious quality might be divided into three successively progressive stages represented by just those words, viz.: first and lowest, or most primitive, simple intelligence; second, mind; third, highest and possibly endowed with the property of perpetuity or immortality, soul."

"But," I interrupted, "if your idea has any validity, then the soul of man is simply, as older philosophers than you long ago proclaimed, an emanation, or a portion, of a universal spirit, to which it goes back and in which it is absorbed, and so lost, as an individuality, destroyed after its separation from the body that held it."

"That may be so," he said, "but it doesn't affect my illustration. Besides, as I remarked, there may be a superior state that intelligence, or mind, may attain, when held by an optional brain-mass, in which state the quality of deathlessness may be acquired. Intelligence grown to soul may become an organic thing, a personality, which cannot henceforth be destroyed. In that case the brain is a womb for the soul, and the separation which is death for the body, is the soul's birth."

"But here," I remarked, "your illustration surely fails, for planets don't lose their atmospheres." "You would drive the analogy too far," he replied. "To avoid the difficulty I will suppose that the brain acts after the manner of electro-magnetism; as long as the current flows round the coil the magnet holds its grip. But that current represents the physical life of the brain cells, and when it ceases to act the soul is set free."

At this point I lost the philosopher's voice in sleep.

A Treasure-Trove of Humor From His Newly Discovered Newspaper Writings

A VILLAINOUS TRICK

When it becomes necessary for an actor to write a letter during the performance of a play, it is a custom to read the words aloud as he writes them. It is necessary to do this in order that the audience may be apprised of its contents, otherwise the clearness of the plot might be obscured. The writing of a letter upon the stage therefore, generally has an important bearing upon the situation being presented, and of course the writer is forced to read aloud what he writes for the benefit of the audience.

During the production of "Monbars" in Houston some days ago, the gentleman who assumed the character of the heavy villain took advantage of a situation of this description in a most cowardly manner.

In the last act, Mantell, as Monbars, writes a letter of vital importance, and, as customary, read the lines aloud as he wrote them. The villain hides behind the curtains of a couch and listens in fiendish glee to the contents of the letter as imported by Mr. Mantell in strict confidence to the audience. He then uses the information obtained in this underhanded manner to further his own devilish designs.

Mr. Mantell ought not to allow this. A man who is a member of his own company, and who, no doubt is drawing a good salary, should be above taking a mean advantage of a mere stage technicality.

THE DIFFERENCE

When Cynthia smiles and all is fair
Her liquid laughter woos the air.
Her cheek so smooth,
Her chin so smooth,
End in a dimple made by love.

When Cynthia frowns and all is drear
Her scolding splits the atmosphere,
Her jaw so strong,
And chin, though small,
Appear to have no end at all.

HER RUSE

"How do I keep John home of night?" asked a Houston lady of a friend the other day.

"Well, I struck a plan once by sudden inspiration, and it worked very nicely. John had been in a habit of going down town every night after supper and staying until ten or eleven o'clock. One night he left as usual, and after going three or four blocks he had forgotten his umbrella and came back for it.

"I was in the sitting-room reading, and he slipped in the room on his tiptoes and came up behind me and put his hands over my eyes. John expected me to be very much startled, I suppose, but I only said softly: 'Is that you, Tom?'

"John hasn't been down town at night since."

UNIVERSITY AT TOKIO MAY GET NEW SITE

Change In Location Is Urged
 When Rebuilding
 Is Started

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Sept. 24.—There seems to be a remote possibility that the Tokio Imperial University will be moved from its present site in Hongo to the other side of the city, where the Agricultural College attached to the University now stands. The proposed new location is ideal from every point of view, higher and more open, though the communications with it still leave much to be desired. Still it is not inaccessible, and within the next few years it may be expected that it will be brought within easier reach.

The buildings of the present Agricultural College occupy only one-third of the available ground, so that there would be plenty of room for all the activities of the University, should the removal find favor with the Faculty and other authorities concerned.

An alternative plan is suggested—namely, to transfer the present First Higher School, which occupies the site adjoining the University grounds in Hongo, to the Agricultural College site, to add the Higher School grounds to those of the University, and then to concentrate all the various activities and buildings of the University.

These two plans are now being discussed informally by members of the University faculty, and are likely to be submitted shortly to a formal meeting of the Council.

HARBOR WORKS IN YOKOHAMA STILL STAND

Damage Not So Great As At First Reported,
 Osaka Says

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, Sept. 25.—Reports published here, whether based on actual survey or on conjecture it is impossible to say, state that the damage to the harbor in Yokohama is not so great as was at first anticipated. Though the breakwater has sunk a little more than ten feet, it is claimed that the foundations are as firm as before, while the different anchorages inside the harbor are untouched, except for a rise in the bottom of the sea, in places as much as one foot.

As regards the wharves, it is further claimed that those constructed of concrete suffered little damage from the quake, and that the necessary repairs have been or are being effected by the military engineers.

It is considered a matter of extreme urgency to push on the harbor repairs as rapidly as possible, not only to have a nearer port of discharge for the building material required by the destroyed cities and for relief supplies, but also to relieve the actual or threatened congestion at Kobe, where last Saturday there was sixty-five thousand tons of cargo awaiting discharge, with the prospect of a huge increase—amounting to over two hundred tons—in the present week.

Weather Report

Oct. 1.—The Siberia anticyclone is spreading over North China. The typhoon, slackened by the continental rise of pressure advances slowly westward by the North of Formosa Island and Strait. Another center moves towards Northwestern by the Southeastern of Guam. Cyclonic circulation on the South of the Eastern Sea. Strong Northeastern winds along our coasts. Cloudy but fine weather in China.

Oct. 2.—Overcast weather. The pressure is increasing. Breezes from North-northeastern with some squalls. The typhoon has probably landed to the North of the Formosa Strait.
